

Abstract

5 The present invention concerns a method to distinguish between memory-driven and non-memory driven processes by the use of higher order correlation functions. In particular, it concerns means to investigate memory driven processes in enzymatic catalysis, and especially in single molecule sequencing reactions.

10

10020888 121501